Utah State University College of Agriculture
Hall of Honor Award

Background

The Utah State University College of Agriculture Hall of Honor Award was created in 1999. This award recognizes alumni who, now in the twilight of their career, have brought honor and recognition to themselves and the college. Each year, alumni are nominated to receive the award. Two nominees may be selected to receive this honor each year, however, if no nominations meeting the selection committee’s criteria are submitted, the selection committee may choose to select no honorees in that particular year.

The selection committee is comprised of the College of Agriculture Alumni Council, the Dean and Associate Deans of Agriculture, and the college alumni association Executive Director. The Development Office in the College of Agriculture administers the program.

Criteria

Nominees must have achieved the following to be considered:

- They must have a degree from Utah State University College of Agriculture (BS/BA, MS/MA, or PhD);
- They must have made a significant contribution to his or her profession or society in general;
- They must have a record of outstanding accomplishments.
- They may still be active in their careers, but can have no fewer than 25 years of employed service at the time of their nomination.

Current Utah State University College of Agriculture faculty and staff, and elected officials currently serving in office are not eligible for this award.

Nomination Document

The nomination document, including a cover letter from the nominator, should include the following biographical information about the nominee (attach additional pages as needed):

- Current position
- Education (institution(s), graduation date(s), degree(s))
- Professional positions held
- Professional and civic activities and contributions
- Awards and citations received
- Personal information
